

Well-Known S.L. Doctor Dies at 72 After Stroke

From Yesterday's Late Editions

Dr. John Rees Llewellyn, 72, well-known general practitioner, died Saturday at 7 p.m. in a Salt Lake rest home after a stroke.

Long associated with the Salt Lake Clinic, Dr. Llewellyn had been ill for several years.

HE RETIRED from practice in 1953.

His family residence is at 2830 Glenmare St. (1575 East).

He was born Dec. 15, 1886, in Fountain Green, Sanpete County, a son of Gomer David and Olive Leslie Llewellyn. He married Hazel Fransden Aug. 19, 1908, in the Salt Lake Temple, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

DR. LLEWELLYN was graduated from Brigham Young University, Provo, in 1906. Shortly thereafter he taught high school in Price for two years.

Following his teaching stint, he continued his studies at the University of Utah for another two years before enrolling in Rush Medical College, Chicago.

HE TOOK HIS medical degree from that institution in 1914 and first began practicing in Magna and Garfield. He came to Salt Lake City about 1920 and joined the Salt Lake Clinic.

He was a former member of the board at Latter-day Saints Hospital, Salt Lake City Board of Health, Utah State Hospital Board and served on the draft appeal board during World War II.

HE IS SURVIVED by his mother; his widow; four sons and two daughters: Rees F., Leslie G. and Jack R. Llewellyn, Mrs. W. Harold (Margaret) Carlson and Mrs. Richard (Yvonne) Christensen, all of Salt Lake City; Max R. Llewellyn, Phoenix, Ariz.; nine grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Art (Blanche) Bench and Mrs. Glen (Dora) Tripp, both of Salt Lake City.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Dr. John R. Llewellyn . . .
Retired physician, 72, dies.